- During WWII because of the threat of Japanese attack many DRTT buses were painted in camouflage. m/o 1615 (now in restoration) shows route 150, predecessor to route 190.
- m/o 1877 in green and cream, with route 182 "NARRABEEN" destination and depot plate V65. Note the absence of the engine cover on this model. 1877 is now in Scotland fully restored and in the city of its chassis manufacture.
- In red and cream, m/o 1552 (with engine cover) was the first CX19 to be put into service by the DRTT. It was followed by 159 more, the largest fleet of the model in the world. Destination "BALMORAL". Note the different rear ends on pre- and post WWII buses
- All models have the profile of a Waddington / Comeng body, true to the original buses.
